GET A TASTE OF FISHING ADVENTURES

Fot. arch. Angry Pikes

Experienced anglers and fishermen and women need no convincing about the attractiveness and fish-abundant waters in Varmia, Masuria and Powiśle. For those who have never tried their hand at fishing, the region is the perfect place to start one's adventure with this form of outdoor leisure pursuit.

Due to the richness and variety in its surface waters, many fish species and fantastic catches can be reeled in. Anglers and fishing enthusiasts will not only find species that are present in lakes and lowland rivers but also fish that are associated with mountain rivers, even some typically marine fish. Advocates of traditional fishing where the fish is caught to be eaten have excellent conditions to develop their passion. When at the fishery, one can get a campfire going (where permitted), and cook up the catch on a stick over a campfire, over the coals, or on a frying pan. The catch can also be fried, grilled, baked, or smoked back at one's accommodation as many agrotourism farms, holiday homes, guesthouses and resorts offer such facilities. The area is also dotted with eateries preparing dishes from the fish provided by the customer. Angling, recreational or sport fishing is becoming increasingly popular and is fishing for pleasure or competition where, after being photographed and weighed, the fish are released back into the wild.

Lakes, Rivers and... the Sea

There are close to 3,000 lakes in the region and Masuria is particularly abundant in them. The presence of fish species in specific water bodies is dependent on its size and nature, as well as the type of fishing activities engaged therein. In larger and deeper lakes, we can count on the availability of the greatest variety of species (bream, tench, roach, crucian carp, pike, perch, zander, eel, wels catfish, sometimes also common carp, grass carp, and whitefish). Smaller forest lakes that are sometimes partially overgrown and more inaccessible also have their advantages... although there will be fewer species available, some beautiful catches can also be found there. The largest rivers in the region, headed by River Łyna, are habitats of species found in lakes as well as typically lowland rivers (European chub, ide, dace, pigfish, barbel, asp, and burbot). But there are also particularly clean and rapid stretches of the rivers where salmonid fish occur that are associated with mountain streams (brown trout, grayling, and sea trout). Catching these fine fish species is rightly considered the tour de force and requires appropriate preparation and equipment (as well as the purchase of a rod fishing licence for the given fishery). The Zalew Wiślany (The Vistula Lagoon) is a unique reservoir. Due to its direct connection with the Baltic Sea, its waters are slightly salty. Therefore, diadromous species (eel and salmon) coexist with typically freshwater and marine fish (cod, herring, garfish, and flounders: European flounder, common dab, turbot, and European plaice).

There are also many well-stocked special fisheries in the region that are available on a commercial basis. If someone wants to enhance their chances of a reeling in a big catch, they can take advantage of the offer.

Discover the Region from the Waterside

There is much useful information for angling and fishing enthusiasts in the tab of the regional tourism website mazury.travel. You can find out about the formalities that must be met in order to legally fish in a given fishery, depending on who it is managed by. In the Varmian and Masurian Voivodship, the waters are managed either by districts of the Polish Angling Association (Olsztyn, Elbląg, Mazovia, and Torun), or various fish farms. To be able to fish in the Zalew Wiślany, a rod fishing licence must be purchased at the Regional Office of the General Sea Fisheries Inspectorate (in Frombork or other locations on the Baltic Coast).

The next set of information on the portal concerns protecting and preserving the natural environment while fishing/angling (including periods of protection and size limits, as well as daily fishing limits per species). Apart from that, information on where and what standard of accommodation is available, the best places to eat, along with food recommendations, as well as other attractions in the region apart from fishing/angling.

The continually expanded and updated Fishing and Angling Directory with detailed information on all the lakes, their location, surface area and type, with particular attention to their attractiveness to anglers and fishing enthusiasts and the fish species found there is particularly useful.

HORSE RIDING IN GALINY

Fot. arch. Pałac i Folwark Galiny

The nearly 500-year-long history of the historic seat of the Eulenburg family in Galiny is difficult to reconstruct today. On a hill, in a bend of the river, a brick defensive manor house was erected. The hill was surrounded by water - the river and the moat (on the western side), with a drawbridge. The construction of the main palace was completed in 1589 under Botho zu Eulenburg. The origin of the park, which surrounds the palace from three sides, dates back to the 19th century.

Currently, in the Galiny estate there is a hotel with a restaurant, a stud farm and a horse-riding school. In the surrounding fields agricultural activity is carried out.

The Stud Farm in Galiny was founded in 1998 and has been constantly developing since then. From the beginning, the stud has been focused on breeding sport horses for jumping. What's more, the stallions have been selected from the best jumping lines in the world. The historic stables and round pens are home to more than 60 horses. The stud farm also uses 70 ha of pastures. In the Galiny stud there is a horse-riding school, conducting lessons for adults and children at many different levels. Lessons are conducted on three open-air arenas and in a comfortable indoor ring (60 m x 25 m).

For advanced riders there are beautiful vast areas where horse riders can enjoy miraculous views.
